

Cambridge International Examinations
Cambridge Ordinary Level

SOCIOLOGY

2251/12

Paper 1

October/November 2014

2 hours 30 minutes

No Additional Materials are required.

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

An answer booklet is provided inside this question paper. You should follow the instructions on the front cover of the answer booklet. If you need additional answer paper ask the invigilator for a continuation booklet.

Answer Question 1 and three questions from Sections B to D.

The number of marks is given in brackets [] at the end of each question or part question.

This document consists of 3 printed pages, 1 blank page and 1 insert.

Section A: Research Methods

In their research, sociologists will often ask questions in order to find out information and test hypotheses. A popular method used for doing this is questionnaires or surveys. A questionnaire consists of a series of written questions that can be either open or closed. Positivist sociologists tend to prefer closed questions, whereas interpretivists will opt for open questions instead.

Using questionnaires means a large sample can be researched if a suitable sampling frame can be found. If a stratified sample is used, then representative data can be collected and generalisations can be made. Questionnaires typically produce quantitative data and in this way are similar to structured interviews and official statistics.

- 1 (a) What is meant by the following terms?
- (i) open questions [2]
 - (ii) structured interview [2]
 - (iii) sampling frame [2]
- (b) Describe one strength and one limitation of using a large sample in sociological research. [4]
- (c) Describe one advantage and one disadvantage of using official statistics in sociological research. [4]
- (d) Describe two types of survey used in sociology. [4]
- (e) Describe two ways that questionnaires can be distributed. [4]
- (f) Describe two strengths and two limitations of using questionnaires in sociological research. [8]

Section B: Culture and Socialisation

- 2 The way people behave in society is strongly influenced by the processes of socialisation and social control. Nurture is therefore thought by sociologists to be more important than nature.
- (a) What is meant by the term social control? [2]
 - (b) Describe two examples of informal social control. [4]
 - (c) Explain why nurture is thought to be more important than nature in shaping the way people behave. [6]
 - (d) To what extent can it be argued that in modern industrial societies the media is the most important agency of socialisation? [8]
- 3 Sub-cultures exist in most societies and are particularly popular with young people.
- (a) What is meant by the term sub-culture? [2]
 - (b) Describe two shared values. [4]
 - (c) Explain why sub-cultures are particularly popular with young people. [6]
 - (d) To what extent is primary socialisation more influential than secondary socialisation? [8]

Section C: Social Stratification and Inequality

- 4 Poverty, which can be absolute or relative, may affect some social groups more than others.
- (a) What is meant by the term absolute poverty? [2]
 - (b) Describe two reasons why individuals may find themselves in a poverty trap. [4]
 - (c) Explain why some social groups are more likely to experience poverty than others. [6]
 - (d) To what extent is poverty a feature of modern industrial societies? [8]
- 5 In all societies individuals have different amounts of status depending upon their social class. Social class can also affect the job an individual does and their employment opportunities.
- (a) What is meant by the term status? [2]
 - (b) Describe two examples of social classes. [4]
 - (c) Explain how a person's employment opportunities may be affected by their social class. [6]
 - (d) To what extent is de-skilling a feature of employment in modern industrial societies? [8]

Section D: Power and Authority

- 6 Suffrage is thought by many to be a source of power for individuals in society. How an individual votes is clearly influenced by their social characteristics.
- (a) What is meant by the term suffrage? [2]
 - (b) Describe two consequences for women of getting the right to vote. [4]
 - (c) Explain why political representation is thought by many to be biased and unrepresentative of society. [6]
 - (d) To what extent do social characteristics such as gender, age, ethnicity and social class affect voting behaviour? [8]
- 7 Different societies have very different political systems. How power and authority are organised and distributed within these societies is a matter of debate.
- (a) What is meant by the term authority? [2]
 - (b) Describe two features of a dictatorship. [4]
 - (c) Explain how governments in a democracy try to stay in power and win votes. [6]
 - (d) To what extent do you agree with the Pluralist view that power is widely distributed in democratic societies? [8]

BLANK PAGE

Permission to reproduce items where third-party owned material protected by copyright is included has been sought and cleared where possible. Every reasonable effort has been made by the publisher (UCLES) to trace copyright holders, but if any items requiring clearance have unwittingly been included, the publisher will be pleased to make amends at the earliest possible opportunity.

Cambridge International Examinations is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group. Cambridge Assessment is the brand name of University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES), which is itself a department of the University of Cambridge.