SECTION A

Answer EITHER Question 1 OR Question 2.

1 Read the following poem.

Blessing

The skin cracks like a pod.
There never is enough water.

Imagine the drip of it,
the small splash, echo
in a tin mug,
the voice of a kindly god.

5

Sometimes, the sudden rush of fortune. The municipal pipe bursts, silver crashes to the ground
and the flow has found a roar of tongues. From the huts,
a congregation: every man woman
child for streets around
butts in, with pots,
brass, copper, aluminium,
plastic buckets,
frantic hands,

10

and naked children
screaming in the liquid sun,
their highlights polished to perfection,
flashing light,
as the blessing sings
over their small bones.

OR*2 Read the following extract from The Life of Pi

Pi (the narrator) is an Indian boy from Pondicherry. In this part of the novel he reminisces about his early childhood, growing up in relative luxury, in his father's zoo.

A portion of the grounds of the Pondicherry Botanical Garden was made available rent-free for an exciting business opportunity and – lo and behold – India had a brand new zoo, designed and run according to the most modern, biologically sound principles.

It was a huge zoo, spread over numberless acres, big enough to require a train to explore it, though it seemed to get smaller as I grew older, train included. Now it's so small it fits in my head. You must imagine a hot and humid place, bathed in sunshine and bright colours. The riot of flowers is incessant.

There are trees, shrubs and climbing plants in profusion – peepuls, gulmohurs, flames of the forest, red silk cottons, jacarandas, mangoes, jackfruits and many others that would remain unknown to you if they didn't have neat labels at their feet. There are benches. On these benches you see men sleeping, stretched out, or couples sitting, young couples, who steal glances at each other shyly and whose hands flutter in the air, happening to touch.

Suddenly, amidst the tall and slim trees up ahead, you notice two giraffes quietly observing you. The sight is not the last of your surprises. The next moment you are startled by a furious outburst coming from a great troupe of monkeys, only outdone in volume by the shrill cries of strange birds.

You come to a turnstile. You distractedly pay a small sum of money. You move on. You see a low wall. What can you expect beyond a low wall? Certainly not a shallow pit with two mighty Indian rhinoceros. But that is what you find. And when you turn your head you see the elephant that was there all along, so big you didn't realize those are hippopotamuses floating in the water. The more you look, the more you see.

You are in Zootown!

Explain how the writer uses language to explore the surroundings in this extract.

In your answer you should consider:

- the writer's descriptive skills
- the writer's choice of language
- the writer's use of structure and form

Support your answer with examples from the extract.

Peepuls = Sacred fig

Gulmohurs = Tree

Jacarandas = Purple flowers

Jackfruits = Tree which bears fruit
